

April 2011
Chamber Article
By Eileen R Eichhorn

Spring Diamond Jewelry Fashion Trends 2011

The fashion runways had dramatic diamond earrings and classic diamond necklaces as the focus of the season. Diamond line bracelets added the final touches of shine. Even raw diamonds made their presence. The Oscars featured statement jewelry worn by co-host Anne Hathaway with a platinum 94.29-carat diamond necklace, a platinum 5.13-carat diamond ring, and a pair of platinum 10.15-carat diamond earrings. Very old Hollywood glamour showed actress Nicole Kidman in a strapless gown with a 150-carat 19th Century diamond necklace, worn as a choker (my personal favorite). Elaborate rings were also a trend, especially amongst those celebrities who chose not to wear too much jewelry.

You may not have the means to purchase such extravagant diamonds! However, their presence in the news illustrates that brilliant diamond accessories can make the difference between a good-looking outfit and a great looking ensemble. Subtle accents such as one new piece of diamond jewelry can put sparkle in your step and create a “new you”. How big does a diamond have to be to be beautiful and create that desired look that makes you feel “dressed”? Not large at all. It is more important that the diamond or diamonds be of high quality for the perfect emphasis. At Eichhorn Jewelry we have helped accessorize our clients for over 45 years. Whether for a milestone occasion or everyday diamonds our staff is trained to explain how one classic piece of jewelry becomes you. Perhaps you have a jewelry item that you no longer wear because it is yellow gold and you wear more white gold now. Consider trading it in toward a new more fashionable style. You may be surprised how affordable this can be! Visit Eichhorn Jewelry in downtown Decatur for the latest styles in diamond jewelry or eichhornjewelry.com.