Eileen R. Eichhorn GG of Eichhorn Jewelry, Inc. in Decatur recently attended The National Association of Jewelry Appraisers' 36th ACE© It Annual Mid-Year Conference in Cleveland Ohio. The Association, consisting of national and international membership, is dedicated to the maintenance of professional standards, professional ethics and education in the field of appraising jewelry. All members must adhere to the professional Code of Ethics of the Association and all appraisal assignments must be performed under the constraints of this Code.

This year's conference concentrated on several work areas which confront jewelry appraisers on a daily basis updating their knowledge to keep current. Lectures were given on expert witness testimony skills, treated diamonds, treated rubies/sapphires, pearls and cameos as well as workshops using the spectroscope. A special behind the scenes tour of the gems and minerals housed in the Cleveland Museum of Natural History with curator Dr. David Saja was the highlight of the conference.

Ms. Eichhorn, a Certified Senior Member of NAJA performs a variety of appraisals and appraisal related services for insurance purposes as well as fair market value.
